LAW CHALLENGED

Constitutionality of California's new law permitting judges to comment to juries on evidence presented in criminal trials has been challenged in two cases just laid before the Supreme Court. Both are criminal cases and both appeals are based on the contention that the trial judges overstepped their authority in discussion the evidence before the jury.

SYSTEM ON TRIAL

The real issue involved, to my way of thinking, as I have herebefore observed, is whether we are going to change our judicial system and substitute trial by jury for that of trial by jury in recent months one jurist took occasion to boldly tell a jury that the defendant was guilty, taking away from that body the right to pass upon her guilt or innocence. On appeal the verdict was promptly reversed.

LET'S BE HONEST

If we are dissatisfied with our present system of trying people for crime and putting their fate into the hands of twelve men and women we should come out in the open and make the change by proper method, instead of effectuating that result by deceptive and indirect methods. The argument that trial by jury still exists when the death or liberty of a defendant hinges on the mental state of a jurist and his remarks, which in effect are directions to the jury as to what verdict to render, is the height of illogicality, to my way of thinking.

ROME EXCEPTION

Incidentally I am pleased that Judge Thomas D. Johnston has refrained from exercising the right granted him by the law, and has permitted parties to decide the fate of those who appear before him on criminal charges. I am not aware of the attitude of Judge Bray, for he has not yet had occasion to preside at criminal trials, due to the short time he has been on the bench, but I sincerely hope he will follow the precedent set by his colleague and adhere to the system established by the constitution. Furthermore it is my expectation that when the Supreme Court hands down its decisions in these cases it will do likewise.

Girl Stolen, Father Fights Two Officers

MARTINEZ, Oct. 3.—A "stolen" Filipino schoolgirl, an avenging father and two companions, a battle with officers and a threatened suicide by the girl—these were all the elements of a good detective thriller that Deputy Sheriff Al Davies and Constable Russell Stowe of Alamo experienced today.

It all started when Alamo school authorities reported that Caroline Tormes, 14, had failed to appear at school. Davies started to investigate and learned, through dubious channels, that the girl was at the home of one, Tony Calabrio, 22, a Filipino. Davies and Stowe went to the home and demanded the girl. Just then the door broke open and in came Maximo Tormes, 58, father of the girl and two assistants, Primo and Lito, 29 and Hilario Glasis, 10, who declared his daughter had

State Treasurer Is Quizzed By Probers

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 2.—UP—State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson deposited $200,000 to his personal bank account over a period of 10 years, Harold H. Dickinson, vice president and cashier of the Merchants National Bank told the Sacramento county grand jury today.

Robinson was one of the first names to appear before the grand jury as it opened investigation of the disappearance of William B. Shearer, missing cashier of the state treasury, and alleged embezzler of $24,000.

It was pointed out that Johnson, as state treasurer, receives a salary of $5,000 annually, and is known to be interested in minor properties, real estate, and apartment houses.

The grand jury extended its investigation into Johnson's private banking affairs after District Attorney Otis Pallock had questioned him at length regarding Shearer's disappearance.

LARGE CHECKS—Robinson testified that Johnson frequently deposited bond coupons of large amounts in his personal account. Once the banker said, Johnson deposited a $1,500 check made out to him by the federal government.

The grand jurors announced that efforts would be made to trace this check back to Washington to determine its source and nature.

Johnson meanwhile reiterated his confidence that no one but Shearer had been involved in peculation of the $24,000. He said a thorough check showed no other shortage.

AUDITS UNDER WAY—District Attorney Otis Pallock also questioned Johnson regarding a $5000 shortage last January. Johnson said he made the shortage good with his own money as he was unable to trace the peculation directly to Shearer.

Meanwhile, three separate audits of the treasury department's books were underway, by the Department of Finance, the treasury itself and the district attorney's office.

The wife, Lena, 42, of the Woodland hospital, suffered from cuts, bruises and shock, sustained in the accident.

ON DEER HUNT

According to information received here, Ginochlo and his wife had been in the northern part of the State on a deer hunting and fishing trip. On route home yesterday they met with the fatal accident. Ginochlo, it is understood, turned out to avoid hitting another car and his machine left the highway and overturned. He was crushed in the wreckage. Passing motorists took him to the Woodland hospital five miles away from the scene of the collision.

The body has been brought to the Ryan Funeral Home here where last rites are pending.

HIRING HALL ISSUE IS AT STAKE AGAIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—UP—A tie-up of the entire San Francisco waterfront if employers add non-union men to the longshore rolls was presaged tonight by Harry Bridges, president of the San Francisco local of the I.L.A.

At a meeting tonight, the union prepared for emergency action by suspending a rule requiring a 36 hour advance notice of a meeting and authorizing Bridges to call the local together at any time between now and Monday if he thinks it justified.

NEW CRISIS

Bridges made it clear that from the union standpoint the present crisis has nothing to do with the "hot cargo" controversy. That was settled early this week, so far as the San Francisco local is concerned by the decision of Federal Arbitrator M. C. Sloss in ruling that longshoremen under the 1934 arbitration award must handle all cargo.

Bridges indicated that the hiring hall question is the hub of the present controversy.

"The hiring hall situation can have but one of two solutions," Bridges said. "Either the employers must cease usurping the powers of the longshore hiring hall and reinstate the suspended men or must employ non-union men."

THREATENS STRIKE

"The minute a non-union man tries to work cargo the entire waterfront will go out just like that," the union leader said.

Late in the day Pacific Steamship lines, major coast operator, announced temporary discontinuance of all freight service.

"Each succeeding day confronts us with further operating difficulties and prohibitive costs; with heavy congestion at terminals due to our inability to secure gangs" (Continued on page Eight)

Youth Wounded In Accidental Gun Discharge

MARTINEZ, Oct. 3.—George Reetz, 20, of Crockett, a warehouseman employed by the California & Hawaiian Sugar Corporation, was wounded seriously this morning when he stumbled while walking near a rifle range south of Crockett and accidentally discharged a 38 automatic pistol he was carrying. The bullet went through his shoulder above the heart.

Presence of Jack Hill and William Dietz, refinery workers who happened to be engaged at the rifle range, probably saved the life of Reetz.

They rushed him to Crockett for emergency treatment by Dr. Christopher Leggo and then brought him to the Community hospital here, where he is under the care of Dr. G. L. Coates.

Reetz, who has been on leave because of illness, had gone to the hills for practice shooting.

He is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. William Graham of the Contra Costa Golf club.

ITALY ARMY ON ADVANCE IN AFRICA

first across the shallow Mareb river as the zero hour struck. Machine guns followed. Then came long, thick columns of infantry pouring southward into a valley between great mountain peaks, pointed into the heart of Ethiopia.

RIVERS CROSSED

The columns crossed the river so recently at flood stage, at widely separated points, but all converged quickly and in perfect order toward Addis Ababa. It was necessary to move in columns because the general staff decided, because of the terrifically formidable nature of the rough terrain, to move the armies along valleys.

The squadrons of bombing planes fighting planes and observation planes roared away from Asmara, Italian Eritrea, and other fields, over a road mountain peaks. They had to reach altitudes of 10,000 to 11,000 feet to cross the encircling mountain around Addis, but no difficulties were reported from the war birds.

WITH ARMY

Addis is 20 miles south of the frontier and Addis is 18 miles south and 40 miles east of Addis. Only a few minutes' flight for the planes intent on subjugating the ancient empire of the Ethiopians, never conquered.

As the advance progressed in the chill morning air, General Emilio De Bono, commander in chief of the colonial armies and veteran colonial fighter, moved his staff headquarters close to the front. The general, 65 years old, is a slight figure with a white coat. This correspondent moved up with the armies.

After a struggle in which the three were handily and relieved of their pistols, the two officers started a search for the girl. Tomes, Lao, and Giss were slightly injured in the fray but the officers escaped with bruised knuckles.

As the officers searched the house they found that the girl was hidden in the attic. As they measures for protection of Addis Ababa. Officials prepared to flee to caverns deep in the bowels of the mountain towering over the city at the first warning of planes in the sky.

BATTERIES POSTED

Anti-aircraft batteries were posted in concealed emplacements, two machine guns, with muzzles pointing skyward, stood in the shadow of the gilded statue of Menelik, the revered monarch who defeated the Italians in 1896.

Two anti-aircraft guns were set up at the railroad station. Many foreigners took to the hills tonight, fearing a night bombardment of the city. Others said they would pitch camp in the hills early tomorrow before daybreak.

TRAIN FLEE

Seven anti-aircraft guns were set up at Addis, a village a half hour down the railway line, in an effort to intercept any planes which might approach the capital.

All Italians were herded into the Italian legation, which presumably was well known to the Italian bombing pilots, for safety.

TROOPS CALLED

General mobilization was ordered by the King of Kings in a dramatic scene at the old imperial palace at 11 a. m. At a signal from the Lion of Judah the 14 war drums began a heavy throbbing which could be heard for miles. It was taken up from village to village and spread in ever-widening circles until by tonight the entire country was a throbbing with its muffled thunder.

MILLION ON MARCH

Warriors rushed from their huts, swinging spears and rifles that were new a generation ago, to join their chiefs and march to district headquarters for orders. The war office, where the Emperor's Belgian, Swedish and Turkish military advisers worked far into the night, estimated more than 1,250,000 warriors would be in the field by tomorrow morning, ready to combat the Italian advance.

The Ras Kibada and three generals with 50,000 troops were ordered to march at top speed from Dessale, northeast of the capital, to Mount Moussa Ali, where the Italians were reported to have established a military and aerial attack base on Ethiopian soil. Fierce fighting was reported to night in that section of Aussa province near the French Somaliland border. It was believed Ras Kibada had established contact.

Cardinal Hailed

PATRICK CARDINAL HAYES of New York City, as he received the greetings of more than 100,000 when he arrived in Cleveland to act as the personal representative of Pope Pius XI at the seventh National Eucharistic Congress. The Cardinal is shown about to enter St. John's Cathedral.

to load our vessels and to discharge thousands of tons of cargo remaining in the ships," the company said.

OWNS 11 LINERS

"The sooner it is realized by all the people of this area that employers cannot indefinitely continue paying out in labor costs more than their revenue, and that the elements who are combined to destroy the Pacific coastwise waterborne commerce are eliminated, the better it will be for the Pacific Coast at large, and San Francisco in particular."

The company owns and operates 11 liners.

Employers insisted that longshoremen abide by a decision of Federal Arbitrator Judge M. C. Sloss, holding that they must work all cargoes offered them. More than 2,000 union workers were idle, "blacklisted" because they refused to handle the British Columbia cargo aboard the freighter Point Clear. Additional gangs of workers were joining the idle list as union officials purportedly enforced regulations limiting each gang to 120 hours work per period.

DEMAND REGISTRATION

Ship owners said they would demand registration of additional men at the regular weekly meeting of the joint labor relations committee tomorrow morning. The Sailor's Union, and members of the firemen, oilers, water-tenders, wipers, and marine cooks and stewards withdrew picket lines around the Point Clear today. Bridges refused to permit longshore gangs to work the ship, claiming that orders to release the vessel from a Pacific Coast International Longshoremen's Association embargo "would have come from district I. L. A. officers."

Tonight's meeting of the longshoremen was called by Bridges to consider action against what he termed a virtual lock-out on the part of employers. In addition to differences over the hot cargo issue, longshoremen charged employers with usurping hiring hall rights of the union, thus violating the existing working agreement.

UNIONS HIT

Ship-owners replied that the unions were guilty of usurping and wrongly exercising hiring hall powers. In a letter to Judge Sloss they demanded his ruling on three questions involving such alleged misappropriation of rights, should Judge Sloss act on union charges regarding the hiring halls.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward McGrady, who last night issued a strongly worded statement urging the longshoremen to abide by Judge Sloss' ruling they must handle all cargoes, was scheduled to leave by plane tonight for Washington, D. C. During the day Walter G. Mathewson, Federal conciliator, announced that striking bargemen aboard Sacramento and San Joaquin river vessels had agreed to arbitrate their dispute.

tions affairs, left for Geneva at 11:20 last night, optimistic after his two and a half hour conference with Laval.

He was convinced Laval would obtain from the Cabinet a vote to support Britain if she is attacked without provocation by Italy.

Sources closest to Laval said the Cabinet's action today will not mean an Anglo-French alliance at this time but will emphasize that France and Britain are united in support of the League of Nations.

LEAGUE TO ACT

GENEVA, Oct. 3.—UP—The League of Nations strove in vain to speed its cumbersome anti-war machinery tonight as Italian bombing planes roared over Ethiopia and Italian infantrymen fought their way toward Emperor Haile Selassie's capital.

Up to midnight the best the League could do was to appoint another committee and call a session for its Council for 10:00 A. M. Saturday.

Italy seemed destined to follow Japan and Germany in leaving the League—as these nations did—she has decided. The question was whether the League, spurred by Britain would invoke economic and possibly military pressure against Italy and risk starting a general European war.

That mild economic penalties will be attempted all were agreed.
